AYE, BUT ITS HOPES ARE DEAD

Sir Henry Houghton - England

Sir Henry Houghton, of England, in 1865, wrote these beautiful lines as a reply to "The Conquered Banner." The Southern people never expect to see that sacred banner unfurled except to typify the noblest deeds of the human race.

Gallant nation, foiled by numbers,
Say not that your hopes are fled;
Keep that glorious flag which slumbers,
One day to avenge your dead.
Keep it, widowed, sonless mothers,
Keep it, sisters, mourning brothers,
Furl it with an iron will;
Furl it now, but keep it still,
Think not that its work is done.
Keep it till your children take it,
Once again to hail and make it
All their sires have bled and fought for,
Bled and fought for all alone.
All done! aye, shame the story,
Millions here deplore the stain;
Shame, alas! for England's glory,
Freedom called, and called in vain.
Furl that banner, sadly, slowly,
Treat it gently, for 'tis holy,
Till that day---yes, furl it sadly,
Then once more unfurl it gladly,
Conquered banner, keep it still.

A TURTLE ON A FENCE POST

If You ever see one, you'll know he didn't get there by himself.

This work has been compiled from a number of different sources. I have concentrated on first hand accounts and primary sources when available. It is my hope that this sketch will help in your research and become the basis of future in depth research into this regiment and the men who served.

If you have additional information on the men who served in this unit, or the regiment's actions, drop me a note at JRigdon@researchonline.net. I will incorporate them into future editions.

HISTORICAL SKETCH

The 12th Louisiana Infantry was a volunteer regiment formed for Confederate service at Camp Moore, Louisiana in the summer of 1861. These first volunteers, plus later replacements who enrolled in the 12th Louisiana throughout the war, came from communities in the present day Louisiana parishes of Bienville, Caldwell, Claiborne, DeSoto, Grant, Jackson, Lincoln, Morehouse, Natchitoches, Red River, Sabine, Union, Webster, and Winn. Although the number present for duty never exceeded 1,200 men, at least 1,735 men can be found in the surviving records who served with the regiment between 1861 and 1865.

The 12th was sent to Missouri where they were captured at Island No. 10 in April, 1862. After being exchanged, the regiment was assigned to Rust's, Buford's, T.M. Scott's, and Lowry's Brigade. In July, 1862, the unit contained 41 officers and 546 men.

Constant recruiting to replace losses incurred by disease, disability, and desertion plus the addition of three full companies in 1862 kept the regiment at nearly full strength. There were 977 men present for duty in Colonel Scott's command at Jackson on May 1, 1863.

Two months later when the regiment was mustered at Canton, Mississippi, the numbers were reduced to 659 soldiers still present for duty. The command was missing 318 men, more than double the number reported in the Natchez Courier as casualties of the fighting on May 16th. In addition to the 5 killed and 34 wounded at Champion Hill, a total of 279 men were absent from the regiment.

The 12th fought at Jackson before joining the Army of Tennessee at Resaca in early May, 1864.

TimeLine of the Atlanta Campaign

December 16, 1863

General Joseph E. Johnston is ordered to Dalton, Georgia to replace Braxton Bragg as commander of the Army of Tennessee.

December 27, 1863

Gen. Joseph Johnston arrived to take over command of the western army.

February 23, 1864

The 1st Sharpshooters moved from their winter camp to the Confederate lines a mile north of Dalton. They held this position during the Federal demonstration at Dalton until February 28th.

April 24, 1864

Scouts begin to probe Rebel strength south of Ringgold, Georgia. This is the first activity that can be directly associated with the Atlanta Campaign

April 27, 1864

This is the earliest generally accepted date for the start of the Atlanta Campaign. Rear echelon troop movement begins for the Army of the Tennessee (General John B. McPherson). Union scouts probe troop strength at Tunnel Hill.

May 1, 1864

Skirmish at the old Stone Church, east of Ringgold, Georgia. This date is the "official" date of the start of the Atlanta Campaign, listed as such in the Official Records.

May 2, 1864

Skirmish at Lee's Crossroads, near Tunnel Hill and near Ringgold Gap.

May 3, 1864

Skirmishes at Catoosa Springs and Red Clay.

May 4, 1864

This is one of the generally accepted dates for the start of the Atlanta Campaign. General George Thomas (Army of the Cumberland) [US] begins to move slowly east along the Western and Atlantic Railroad from Ringgold. Union troops in all departments begin to move into position for what will be the final summer of war. Skirmish at Varnell (Prater's Mill)

May 6, 1864

Skirmish at Tunnel Hill.

May 7, 1864

This is the latest date for the start of the Atlanta Campaign. Army of the Tennessee [US] moves south from Lee and Gordon's Mill along Taylor Ridge, using it to cover McPherson's flanking movement. A division of the Army of the Cumberland [US] attacks Rebel skirmishers at Tunnel Hill.

Gen. Joseph E. Johnston had entrenched his army on the long, high mountain of Rocky Face Ridge and eastward across Crow Valley. As Maj. Gen. William T. Sherman approached, he decided to demonstrate against the position with two columns while he sent a third one through Snake Creek Gap, to the right, to hit the Western & Atlantic Railroad at Resaca. The two columns engaged the enemy at Buzzard Roost (Mill Creek Gap) and at Dug Gap. In the meantime, the third column, under Maj. Gen. James Birdseye McPherson, passed through Snake Creek Gap and on the 9th advanced to the outskirts of Resaca where it found Confederates entrenched. Fearing defeat, McPherson pulled his column back to Snake Creek Gap. On the 10th, Sherman decided to take most of his men and join McPherson to take Resaca. The next morning, Sherman's army withdrew from in front of Rocky Face Ridge. Discovering Sherman's movement, Johnston retired south towards Resaca on the 12th.

May 8, 1864

Fighting commences along Rocky Face Ridge west of Dalton, specifically at Mill Creek and Dug Gap. Fighting along this spine of high mountains will continue until May 11.

May 9, 1864

McPherson's Army of the Tennessee runs into stiffer than expected Rebel resistance as he moves towards the Western and Atlantic railroad bridge near Resaca. In hostile territory, the general decides to dig in and await reinforcements. Sherman spends the night at the Clisby-Austin house in Tunnel Hill. Moving south after disembarking at the Red Clay depot, Schofield's Army of the Ohio encounters Joseph Wheeler's Confederate Cavalry near Varnell.

May 11, 1864

Carter Stevenson awakes to silence. He communicates that his men can find no soldiers immediately west of Rocky Face to Johnston, who orders a cavalry sweep of the area. Wheeler's cavalry find almost no Union soldiers.

May 12, 1864

Outflanked, with superior numbers to his rear, Johnston withdraws to Resaca

May 14, 1864

Battle of Resaca, Day1 - Almost 100,000 men poured out of Snake Creek Gap west of the tiny Georgia town of Resaca. Fighting occurred along the entire line although the heaviest fighting occurred to the north of the city.

Gen. Joseph E. Johnston had withdrawn from Rocky Face Ridge to the hills around Resaca. On the 13th, the Union troops tested the Rebel lines to pinpoint their whereabouts. The next day full scale fighting occurred, and the Union troops were generally repulsed except on the Confederate right flank where Sherman did not fully exploit his advantage. On the 15th, the battle continued with no advantage to either side until Sherman sent a force across the Oostanula River, at Lay's Ferry, towards Johnston's railroad supply line. Unable to halt this Union movement, Johnston was forced to retire.

May 15, 1864

Battle of Resaca, Day 2 - Engagements continued along lines around Resaca. Hood's Corps [CS] and "Fighting Joe" Hooker's XX Corps [US] bore the brunt of today's fighting, north of the city. Reports of Union troops at Lay's Ferry (Oostanula River) force Johnston to withdraw.

May 17, 1864

Rome falls. After a small skirmish at Adairsville Johnston sets up at Cassville. Sherman mistakenly ends up at Kingston.

May 18, 1864

General John B. McPherson spends the night at a present-day Georgia landmark, Barnsley Gardens

May 19, 1864

Johnston withdraws to the Allatoona Mountains south of the Etowah River after an attack at Cassville, Georgia is cancelled. Sherman decides to regroup in Kingston.

May 23, 1864

Sherman leaves the Western and Atlantic and heads south from Kingston. In 1844 the General visited the Etowah Indian Mounds near Cartersville, Georgia. The W&A cuts through Allatoona Pass east of Cartersville, which Sherman remembered and avoided.

May 25, 1864

Battle of New Hope Church-- Johnston, forced by Sherman to abandon his stronghold in the Allatoona Mountains, moves to block the Union advance on Atlanta meeting Sherman's Army at a small church some 25 miles northwest of Atlanta.

May 27, 1864

Spreading their respective lines east from New Hope Church, Sherman and Johnston battle at Pickett's Mill.

May 28, 1864

After 2 defeats in three days Sherman realized that fighting here was a mistake and moves east towards the railroad. Johnston tries to take advantage of this move by testing Sherman's right flank. Confederate General William Bates runs headlong into McPherson's regulars at Dallas after misunderstanding a signal from his cavalry.

June 1, 1864

General George Stoneman's cavalry captures Allatoona Pass. Realizing the mistake he made, Sherman orders his men to return to the railroad in Acworth.

June 4, 1864

Johnston takes a position on Lost Mountain and Pine Top and moves to Brush Mountain to protect the railroad.

June 8, 1864

U. S. President Lincoln nominated for second term.

June 14, 1864

Leonidas Polk dies during fighting at Pine Mountain.

June 18, 1864

The advances made by Sherman force Johnston to withdraw and reform a line at Kennesaw Mountain.

June 19, 1864

Fighting begins at Kennesaw Mountain.

June 22, 1864

Hood attacks at Kolb Farm, halting Sherman's attempt to bypass Kennesaw.

June 27, 1864

Battle of Kennesaw Mountain. General George Thomas is repulsed in a bloody attack on the center of the Confederate line.

July 2, 1864

After McPherson moves to outflank Johnston, the Confederate General withdraws to Smyrna.

July 4, 1864

Intense fighting at Ruff's Mill turns Johnston's left flank. Johnston pulls back to the so-called Chattahoochee Line starting late today.

July 10, 1864

Johnston withdraws to the gates of Atlanta, carefully destroying all bridges over the Chattahoochee River. Skirmish in Alpharetta. Braxton Bragg is traveling to Atlanta to meet with Johnston as a representative of President Davis.

July 11, 1864

Davis informs Robert E. Lee of his decision to remove Johnston, asks Lee about his feelings on Hood as a replacement.

July 16, 1864

Moving east from Marietta, Georgia, Sherman's forces spread across the open land north of Atlanta. Replying to an inquiry about his plans made by President Davis, Johnston says, "As the enemy has double our number, we must be on the defensive. My plan of operations, therefore, must depend upon that of the enemy."

July 17, 1864

President Davis relieves Johnston of command and places John Bell Hood in charge. In a meeting with his men two days later Sherman instructs them to expect an attack at any moment, given Hood's aggressive nature. Sherman had found out about the change in command thanks to the Atlanta newspapers.

July 20, 1864

Hood attacks and loses at Peachtree Creek. The 12th suffered 57 wounded, and 5 missing out of the 318 engaged. From a point northeast of Atlanta along the Decatur Road (at the corner of present-day Dekalb Avenue and Degress St.) the first artillery shells fall on the city.

July 21, 1864

A "bald hill" east of the city falls to men under the command of Mortimer Leggitt. Renamed Leggett's Hill, this rise offers Sherman an elevated place to fire artillery into the heart of downtown Atlanta. Sherman believes the city will be quickly abandoned. Forward troops report large-scale movement of Confederate forces.

July 22, 1864

The large-scale troop movement is not the retreat of the Army of Tennessee, but the movement of Hardee's Corps on a 15-mile circuitous route to attack the Federal left flank in East Atlanta. General McPherson dies. Confederate losses may exceed 10,000 in this battle.

Following the Battle of Peachtree Creek, Hood determined to attack Maj. Gen. James B. McPherson's Army of the Tennessee. He withdrew his main army at night from Atlanta's outer line to the inner line, enticing Sherman to follow. In the meantime, he sent William J. Hardee with his corps on a fifteen-mile march to hit the unprotected Union left and rear, east of the city. Wheeler's cavalry was to operate farther out on Sherman's supply line, and Gen. Frank Cheatham's corps were to attack the Union front. Hood, however, miscalculated the time necessary to make the march, and Hardee was unable to attack until afternoon. Although Hood had outmaneuvered Sherman for the time being, McPherson was concerned about his left flank and sent his reserves—Grenville Dodge's XVI Army Corps—to that location. Two of Hood's divisions ran into this reserve force and were repulsed. The Rebel attack stalled on the Union rear but began to roll up the left flank. Around the same time, a Confederate soldier shot and killed McPherson when he rode out to observe the fighting. Determined attacks continued, but the Union forces held. About 4:00 pm, Cheatham's corps broke through the Union front at the Hurt House, but Sherman massed twenty artillery pieces on a knoll near his headquarters to shell these Confederates and halt their drive. Maj. Gen. John A. Logan's XV Army Corps then led a counterattack that restored the Union line. The Union troops held, and Hood suffered high casualties.

July 26, 1864

General George Stoneman leaves for the raid on Macon, Georgia, in an attempt to cut Hood's supply line.

July 28, 1864

Concerned with Federal troop movement west of the city, Hood attacks and loses at Ezra Church.

August 4, 1864

Slow encirclement of the city of Atlanta continues with Federals crossing Utoy Creek. Over the next several days heavy skirmishing would occur in this area.

August 25, 1864

Sherman tires of waiting for Hood to leave Atlanta. Orders go out to six of seven divisions telling them to begin moving towards the Macon and Western Railroad, the last of the supply lines for Atlanta.

August 30, 1864

Forward units of Howard's Army of the Tennessee cross the Flint River and take high ground west of Jonesborough, Georgia.

August 31, 1864

Battle of Jonesborough--Day 1. Georgia native, General William "Old Reliable" Hardee moves to Jonesborough to protect the Macon and Western Railroad and launches an attack against Howard. Hood withdraws S. D. Lee from the "diversion."

September 1, 1864

Battle of Jonesborough--Day 2. Defending the small city of Jonesborough, Hardee bears the brunt of a massive assault, but Atlanta is about to be abandoned. With his communication and rail line cut, Hood realizes he can no longer hold the city of Atlanta and retreats to Lovejoy Station (now Lovejoy in Clayton County).

September 2, 1864

Henry Slocum's XX Corps moves into Atlanta, accepting the surrender of the city from Mayor James Calhoun.

September 3, 1864

Sherman wires Washington "Atlanta is ours, and fairly won..."

Following the fall of Atlanta, Hood led his army to Tennessee in a vain attempt to cut off Sherman's supply lines. Like many of the regiments with Hood, the 12th suffered greatly at Nashville and Franklin. They returned to South Carolina to face Sherman in January and February, 1865 and fought their final battle at Bentonville. They surrendered with only a remnant on April 26, 1865.

Confederate Records

<http://www.archives.gov/genealogy/military/civil-war/index.html>

For Confederate army soldiers, there are two major record collections in the National Archives and Records Administration that provide information on military service:

(1) compiled military service record (CMSR) and

(2) records reproduced in microfilm publication M861, Compiled Records Showing Service of Military Units in Confederate Organizations (74 rolls). Records relating to Confederate soldiers are typically less complete than those relating to Union soldiers because many Confederate records did not survive the war.

NARA does not have pension files for Confederate soldiers. Pensions were granted to Confederate veterans and their widows and minor children by the States of Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Georgia, Kentucky, Louisiana, Mississippi, Missouri, North Carolina, Oklahoma, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, and Virginia; these records are in the state archives or equivalent agency.

NARA records are available from the Family History Library in Salt Lake City Utah. You can order them at your local Family History Center (FHC) (Mormon Church). The centers should have a Research Outline on Military Records which should cost about a dollar. Also there is a good book out on Military Records (NARA) by James Neagle. It should be in most FHC. In the card catalog on microfiche, you can go to the Author/Title section, look under Author = National Archives. All their film is there listed by NARA # (sample - M530. LDS microfilm is quicker and cheaper than requesting from NARA}.

To obtain Civil War military service and pension records by mail

Paper copies of Civil War military service and pension records can be ordered by mail using one NATF Form 80 for each soldier and each type of file.

You can obtain the NATF Form 80 by providing your name and mailing address to inquire@nara.gov.

Be sure to specify "Form 80" and the number of forms you need.

You can also obtain the NATF Form 80 by writing to: National Archives and Records Administration, Attn: NWDT1, 700 Pennsylvania Avenue, NW, Washington, DC 20408-0001. The Cost of this type of lookup is $45.00.

CONFEDERATE SERVICE AND PENSION RECORDS

The agencies listed below are repositories for Confederate pension records. The veteran was eligible to apply for a pension to the State in which he lived, even if he served in a unit from a different State. Generally, an applicant was eligible for a pension only if he was indigent or disabled. In your letter to the repository, state the Confederate veteran's name, his widow's name, the unit(s) in which he served, and the counties in which he and his widow lived after the Civil War. Some repositories also have records of Confederate Homes (for veterans, widows, etc.), muster rolls of State Confederate militia, and other records related to the war. For information on procedures and fees for requesting copies of records, contact the appropriate repository. Also See Online Pension Indexes for Florida, Georgia, Tennessee, Texas and Virginia

State Information Center
300 West Main Street
P.O. Box 1747
Jefferson City, MO 65102
Telephone: 573-751-3280

In 1911 Missouri began granting pensions to indigent Confederate veterans only; none were granted to widows. Missouri also had a home for disabled Confederate veterans. The pension and veterans' home applications are interfiled and arranged alphabetically. Typically, the pension file is small, perhaps four to eight pages, containing a standard application form and may include letters of recommendation from family members or others.

SOUTH CAROLINA

South Carolina Department of Archives and History

<http://scdah.sc.gov/>

8301 Parklane Road
Columbia, SC 29223
Telephone: 803-896-6100

A state law enacted December 24, 1887, permitted financially needy Confederate veterans and widows to apply for a pension; however, few applications survive from the 1888-1918 era. Beginning in 1889, the SC Comptroller began publishing lists of such veterans receiving pensions in his Annual Report. To obtain a copy of the pension application from the 1888-1918 era, the researcher needs to know the exact year in which the veteran or widow applied for a pension. From 1919 to 1925, South Carolina granted pensions to Confederate veterans and widows regardless of financial need. These files are arranged alpha-betically. Pension application files are typically one sheet of paper with writing on both sides. Also available are Confederate Home applications and inmate records for veterans (1909-1957), and applications of wives, widows, sisters, and daughters (1925-1955).

TENNESSEE

Tennessee State Library and Archives –
